

T U E S D A Y, DECEMBER 12, 1769.

To BE SOLD, by PUBLIC AUCTION, On WEDNESDAY the THIRD of JANUARY next, if a fair day, and if not, on the first fair day following, at TEN o'clock in the forenoon precisely, on the spot.

THE PLANTATION on CHARLES-TOWN Neck, formerly belonging to George Marshall, deceased, and at present unto the subscriber, about three miles distant from the said town, containing 150 acres of land (exclusive of marsh) as good in quality, as any in that neighbourhood: bounding northward on land of Sarah Bullard; eastward on the high road; southward on land of William Bampfild; and westward on Ashley-River: about one half of which plantation is cleared, and the whole, as well as such parts thereof, as have been cultivated, are enclosed by ditches, near six feet wide, and five feet deep, and substantial fences.

There is a commodious dwelling house thereon, containing six large rooms, besides garrets, lathed and plastered, with a piazza, to the southward, 64 feet long, and 10 feet wide, and another to the eastward, the same width, and 44 feet long; which has been lately new shingled, and completely repaired, and painted; and a kitchen and overseer's house, united under one roof, just erected, at a considerable expense: also a plain, but profitable garden: and the buildings are placed in an airy, pleasant, and healthy situation, on the summit of a hill, from whence the prospect, up and down Ashley-River, is both agreeable and extensive.

The advantages to be derived from the employment of a few hands, on the above plantation, to attend and supply the Charles-Town market, are obvious; and those advantages may be greatly improved, as there is a landing belonging thereto, adjacent to the house, and accessible to a boat of 30 barrels; whereby an opportunity will be afforded, to the planter, of a ready communication, by water, with his plantation more remote, and facilitate the conveyance of stock, &c. from one, to the other: and also another landing, and an eminence, on the south-west end of the tract, outletting the river, which, with the particular situation of the wood and cleared land, render the above plantation capable of division, into two equal parts.

A L S O,

THIRTEEN HEAD OF CATTLE, among which are 10 cows, one whereof a remarkable fine one, that has been several years used to the town: a flock of sheep, recently imported from the northward; and hogs: a chaise not much the worse for wear; several good chair horses: a small sprightly riding horse, suitable for a boy of 10 or 12 years of age: a light, handy, new cart; cart-horses; and variety of plantation tools and utensils, that have been carefully used.

The purchaser or purchasers of any part of the premises, to the amount of 1000l. and upwards, may have one, two, more years credit, paying interest, and giving approved security, if required: and if under 1000l. yet exceeding 100l. credit will be given to the first of March next, paying interest, and giving security, as above: but for all sums under 100l. or to that amount, the cash will be required: and until these conditions are complied with and fulfilled, the property of nothing is to be altered.

Any person inclinable, in the mean time, to purchase the whole, or any part of the premises, at private sale; or to lease the aforesaid plantation, for a term, not less than three years, under proper restrictions, may treat with ROBERT WILLIAMS, junior.

L O N D O N, SEPTEMBER 17.

FRIDAY Sir Edward Hawke, had the honour of a long conference with his Majesty.

Yesterday the Hon. Lord Clive arrived at his house in Berkley-square, from the German Spaw.

Saturday morning an express was sent from the secretary of states office for the court of France.

Richard Bulkley, Esq; is appointed Judge of the Vice-Admiralty Court of Nova-Scotia.

SEPTEMBER 12. Yesterday some dispatches, said to be of importance, arrived in town from Lord Cathcart, his Majesty's ambassador at the court of Russia, which were immediately carried to the secretary of states office.

We have it from undoubted authority, that the truce between the Algerines and the Danes is expired, and the Danish ambassador is arrived at Marseilles.

We are assured that the friends of freedom have it in contemplation, to celebrate a Jubilee in honour of Magna Charta, which is proposed to be held at Runnymede, where King John signed that celebrated paper in the year 1215.

This festival, it is said, will take place in the month of May next, soon after the enlargement of a certain patriotic gentleman.

SEPTEMBER 13. Some letters from Paris mention, that a junction of the French and Spanish fleets is now meditating.

SEPTEMBER 14. It is said that Major Rogers, late Governor of Michillimackinac, who so remarkably distinguished himself during the late war in North-America, has given the most convincing proofs, since his arrival in London, of his innocence, with respect to the late charges maliciously brought against him by his enemies.

A numerous body of freeholders of the county of Bucks assembled at Aylesbury on Tuesday last, to draw up a petition to be presented to his Majesty for redress of grievances. Lord Verney opened the cause of their meeting, and was seconded by Mr.
Aubrey, member for Wallingford. The Hon. Mr. Hampden was then called to the chair, out of respect to the famous John Hampden, and enforced the necessity of petitioning. Mr. Edmund Burke, member for Wendover, spoke for near an hour, in his eloquent and manly manner. Mr. Calcraft and Mr. Obrien likewise spoke, and the petition being then twice read, was unanimously agreed to, and signed by near 500 the same afternoon.
Earl Verney, Lord George Bentinck, Sir William Stanhope, Hon.
Mr. Hampden, Hon. Henry Grenville, Mr. Aubrey, Mr. Edmund Burke, and Mr. Calcraft, were fixed on to deliver it. Earl Temple attended, and gave all possible encouragement to the petition, but as a peer could not sign it. Mr. Obrien gave as a toast, "May unanimity subsist among the three brothers;" upon which Lord Temple stepped forward, and addressed himself nearly thus:

"I am a freeholder, and I have the pleasure to assure you, and on my honour, that there is the greatest unanimity amongst us. It is my ambition, it is my determination, and I have the authority from them to assure you, that they will support this, and every constitutional measure, for the general good."

SEPTEMBER 19. On Friday Captain Lee, of the Aurora frigate, who carries the supervisors to India, received, by order of the directors, the sum of 2000l. as a present for their passage, and he will be paid 1000l. more, on his arrival in India.

A rupture is confidently talked of between Prussia and France.

SEPTEMBER 21. Yesterday, as a great personage was stepping out of his carriage to go to St. James's palace, he was presented with a petition by a young lady of about ten years of age, confidently said to be the daughter of a deceased great personage, to whom she bears an exact likeness. She afterwards presented another petition to his royal highness the Duke of Gloucester, as he was coming out of the palace and stepping into his coach, which he received with a most gracious and benign condescension, and seemed to take great notice of the young lady.

SEPTEMBER 22. Advice has been sent from Stockholm to all the Swedish consuls in the Mediterranean, directing them to take particular care to forbid the subjects of Sweden from entering on board any vessels that may be intended to cruise against the Turks.

It is believed by all keen fought politicians, that the Russian expedition in the Mediterranean cannot fail to involve almost all the maritime powers in Europe in the dispute respecting the affairs of Poland, however remote from that country. The Turks are but, in fact, the first tools of that court, which has taken on itself to support the catholic interest against the protestant in Poland. Others will be drawn in by it in consequence of this bold and extraordinary step of Russia, to declare themselves; and neither the friends of the protestant cause, nor the allies of Russia, will certainly set in a passive state, and see the Empress borne hard upon, for the noble part she has taken, of protecting hitherto, by her sole power, the reformed church in that country.

SEPTEMBER 23. On Friday the natural daughter of a late great personage, was ordered to attend at St. James's, in consequence of the two petitions she presented on Wednesday, the one to the King, and the other to his royal highness the Duke of Gloucester.

All the courtiers surrounding his Majesty, when a late petition was presented, were astonished at the striking resemblance the child bears to her late royal putative father.

Captain O'Hara, who was so barbarously murdered on the coast of Barbary by the Moors, on the 11th of June, was a son of Lord Tyravley.

Upwards of 5000 electors we are told have already signed the Westminster petition.

It is confidently said, that a very considerable sum was paid by one court to another at concluding the peace, as indemnification money, which, tho' not altering the property, evades the nature of a late charge.

A very considerable wager was laid yesterday between two gentlemen at a coffee-house, not far from St. James's, that we should have a war with France before Midsummer day next: But it is to be hoped, the gentleman, who laid it would be so, will lose; for certainly we are not, by any means, in a condition to enter into another war. Besides, to what end and purpose should we commence another war with France? For should we be as successful and victorious in it as we were in the last, (and which would be a miracle) we should most probably be only seventy millions more in debt; for whenever peace shall be made, France knows the way to get all our acquisitions back again. Let us therefore have no new war, till those have been brought to justice who concluded the last peace.

The expected demand of a passage through Holland for some troops, will be from the French, who are to invade the King of Prussia's dominions, in case he should join with the Empress of Russia, or any how assist the Poles against the Turks.

It is now certain, that the parliament will not meet for the dispatch of business till after Christmas, and is said to be fixed for the 6th of January.

SEPTEMBER 29. An immense quantity of stores of all sorts, and provisions of every kind, have been contracted for by the two commisaries at Hull, to be put on board the Russian fleet, as soon as they arrive in the Humber. The trade between that port and Russia, it is said, amounts to above half a million a year.

Several Lieutenants in our navy, who are upon half-pay, have petitioned the admiralty for leave to go into the Russian service; which, it is said has been granted them, upon condition of their returning, on notice for that purpose. All those who obtain leave have their half-pay continued, the same as if they were in England.

OCTOBER 2. A gentleman extremely well versed in calculations has observed, that if the present immense national debt was to begin to be paid off at the rate of one guinea per minute, it would be exactly 200 years before it would be discharged.

Extract of a letter from York, dated September 28.

"Yesterday the meeting of freeholders at this place determined unanimously, to petition the King to dissolve the parliament. Sir George Savile gave a very good account of the transactions of the house in relation to Mr. Wilkes and Mr. Luttrell; explained the nature of the breach in the constitution, the necessity of procuring redress, and the legality of petitioning. Sir George Armitage then spoke on the duty we owe posterity and ourselves in taking the most effectual methods to support the constitution: He then concluded with a motion to petition.
It was then asked, if he had any petition ready, on which he produced one, which was immediately read. The question was then proposed, Whether to agree to it, and it was received with their greatest applause; one single gentleman alone dissenting, who gave his reason for it on the precedent of Sir Robert Walpole, and the impropriety of petitioning, unless the case should be so clear that every one could join to it, which he thought was not the present case. Afterwards, on putting the question again, there was not one dissentient voice. The following is the conclusion of our petition: 'The power of assembling and dissolving parliament is undoubtedly one of the rights vested in your Majesty for the welfare of the people, and by their consent. The voice of a loyal people now calls for the exercise of this power, and their most essential rights are to be preserved by it. Permit us, therefore, Royal Sir, to implore your Majesty to restore the confidence of your people in the justice of parliament, by sending them to a new choice of representatives, which will give your loyal subjects an opportunity of demonstrating their zeal for the constitution, by a choice of men who will guard the honour of the crown and support the rights of the people.' The petition was signed by near 600 freeholders immediately, and in all probability will soon be 1200."

Extract of a letter from Elmhurst, September 19.

"The Russian fleet, consisting of twenty-two men of war of the line, lies half way from this to Copenhagen road these eight days, taking in some fresh stores; they have on board from 10000 to 12000 regular troops, (it is said against Constantinople) though at yet their intention is unknown; only they have provisions for a very long voyage; they are commanded by a Russian admiral, Sperdyof, and under him vice-admiral Andrianoff, four Spanish Capitanes, and Commodore Greig. Another small fleet for the Straights, commanded by Commodore Elphinstone, of two men of war and three frigates, is daily expected to pass here from St. Petersburg, the wind being fair; it is thought the great Russian fleet will pass here to day; ten Danish men of war lie in Copenhagen road."

The contradictory accounts circulated daily in the foreign prints of the proceedings of the Turks and Russians, and the remarkable silence of the London Gazette on this occasion, leaves bye-standers in doubt in which side to ascribe the advantage.

On the breaking out of the war, the general voice seemed to pre-sage victory to Russia, and many were of opinion that Constantinople, the Turkish capital, would be in possession of the Russian army before the end of the first campaign; but though her Imperial majesty's armies have been generally victorious, the progress of the war has not been rapid. Surrounded with enemies on every side, her generals have not only the common enemy to combat, but the treachery of the inhabitants of the country they are destined to defend. The Confederates are more formidable enemies than the Turks, at the latter are open and generous, the former secret and deceitful. The fortress of Chocnim, the key to the Turkish empire, was the first object of her Imperial majesty's attention. Had that barrier been reduced, nothing could have retarded the advancement of her troops but a general engagement, which probably might have determined the fate of the war. The Turks are vigorous in their onset, but sudden in their retreat. If the first shock is bravely sustained their defeat is insured. The Russians are remarkable for steadiness and perseverance. The importance of Chocnim was known to the Turks, and they employed their whole force to defend it. Many bloody skirmishes have attended its defence, and numbers have perished on both sides without any considerable advantage to either. The situation of the place upon a mountain, the strength of the garrison consisting of 13,000 regular troops, and the good condition of the fortifications, rendered an attack by storm, not only hazardous; but impracticable; and the hope of reducing the garrison by a blockade being no longer probable, the Russian general on the approach of winter, wisely determined to withdraw his troops and repair the Neister, and to cover his own magazines. Other motives concurred to strengthen this resolution. What Chocnim is to the Turkish empire, Kaminek is to the Polish dominions, a strong bulwark against the incursions of an invading enemy. The prince had received advice that a detachment of the Turkish army had entered Poland on the side of Mohilow, and he was under apprehensions lest Kaminek should fall into the enemy's hands. His suspicions were not ill grounded. The Confederates of Podolia held a private correspondence with the garrison of this fortress, and had invited the Turks to join in surprising it. The sudden appearance of the prince's army defeated the design, and answered an equally important purpose besides. The Russian army, by being continually exposed to the attacks of a numerous cavalry, was much impaired by fatigue, and wanted not only rest but refreshment. His magazines of ammunition and forage were greatly exhausted, and, in short, when the blockade of Chocnim was determined, difficulties of every kind began to multiply. It was not therefore fear that caused the prince to turn his back upon the enemy, but a prudent precaution, the certain concomitant of true courage. Should the season permit, the troops recover their vigour, and the expected supplies arrive, it is not impossible but Chocnim may yet receive a second siege before the conclusion of the present campaign. While the Turks are wanting their exploits on one side, the Tartars are no less insolent on the other.
The Imperial army under count Romanoff on the banks of the Dnieper, have been no less vigilant than that of the prince. The Zaporovian Kossacks who form the frontier of Russia against the Tartars of the Krim, live in continual dread of a visit from these savages, and had implored her Imperial majesty's protection. Flying squadrons of these savages are for ever making incursions, and like the wild Indians on the back settlements of America seldom return without committing murder. It is their custom to attack by surprise. If they are discovered, their flight is precipitate; if they succeed, their ravages are horrible. If credit may be given to a Turkish tale, the Kossacks have suffered severely by one of these incursions, as they say they, than 10,000 of them were taken prisoners, their country laid waste, their cattle to the number of 60,000 head carried off, 6000 of them slain, and the Russians who supported them defeated. Other accounts however of more credit, make light of this story, and think it very improbable that a despicable banditti should defeat a body of regular Drugs. October 10. At the French write it Oenakow, is the head quarters of count Rumpolt's army; and the last mails, even from Standers, acknowledge the Russians to be victorious wherever they engage.

OCTOBER 9. They write from Brest, that a physician of that town named Durand, who had taken his flight as soon as the pretended English Lord Gordon was apprehended, was seized at Naples the beginning of last month, and brought back to that port. It is added, that the fate of this spy and his accomplices will soon be known.

In the Guildhall of London, October 10, 1769.
At a Meeting of the Livery of London, in Common-Hall assembled.

Resolved. That the Lord Mayor be asked if his Lordship hath specified any answer to the petition of the Livery of London to his Majesty, which prayed for the redress of various grievances, the removal of evil counsellors, and the dissolution of the present Parliament.

Resolved. That the Lord Mayor be called upon to produce the letter which his Lordship received from Henry Lord Holland, dated Holland-House, Kensington, July the 9th, 1769.

Resolved. That Henry Lord Holland was the papmasier whom we, the Livery of London, in our late petition to the throne for the redress of grievances, &c. affirmed to be the public defaulter of unaccounted millions.

Resolved. That it is the duty of our representatives to obtain, if possible, an honest and proper parliamentary enquiry into the conduct and accounts of Henry Lord Holland. And, when it shall appear on such enquiry, that Henry Lord Holland has, by unnecessary delays, detained the public money for years in his hands, and appropriated the interest thereof to his own use, and has also, by various pretences, obtained repeated impediments to public justice, and, by various misrepresentations, induced our Sovereign to stay the legal proceedings against him, thereby endeavouring to lessen that respect that is due to his Majesty, and introduce a power superior to that of law, the use and abuse of which create the distinction between monarchy and tyranny.

Resolved. That then it will become in the highest degree, the duty of our representatives in parliament, to endeavour that Henry Lord Holland be impeached, that he may be an example to all future ministers, and shew them how dangerous it is to enrich themselves with the public treasure, and sport with the rights of a free people.

Resolved. That these resolutions be entered by the town Clerk in the record books of this city, as part of the proceedings of the livery, at the election of a Lord Mayor of this city for the year 1770; and that a copy of these Resolutions, signed by the sheriffs, be delivered to each of our representatives in parliament.

OCTOBER 10. On Tuesday the 10th of this month, his Majesty's ships Worcester and Elizabeth, are to be launched in our dock-yard from the new slips, both at the same hour as near as possible; a thing not known in the memory of man. One of these is a 74 gun ship, the other a 64 gun ship.

This day a Court of Aldermen was held at Guildhall, when the sheriffs returned Mr. Alderman Beckford and Mr. Alderman Trecothick, for their choice of one of them to be Lord Mayor of this city: Whereupon the court made choice of Mr. Beckford, to be Lord Mayor for the year ensuing.

Yesterday the Earl of Bute arrived in town from his seat at Luton-Hoo.

OCTOBER 11. A letter from Derby, dated October 5, says, "At a numerous meeting of gentlemen and freeholders, a petition for this county and town was signed at Chesterfield yesterday; and I am told that the petition will be at Derby to-morrow."

Such a spirit of freedom appears to be gathering in most of the corporations of this kingdom, that at their annual election for new officers, they seem determined to make choice of those gentlemen only, whose conduct has proved them to be steady friends to their country.

Yesterday after the Supporters of the Bill of Rights had dined at the London Tavern in Bishopgate-street, the committee of correspondence and contributions made their report of the several actions that occurred since the receipt of that society.

The assertions cast on the celebrated Paoli (says a correspondent) are as cruel as they are false: Is he less worthy because he has not visited the popular prisoner, the female Historian, and the patriotic Alderman?—It was evidently his intention; but, as he is patronized by government, he must, while under their protection, entirely adopt the mode of conduct offered for his observance.

OCTOBER 12. On Tuesday Lord Holland set out from his house in Piccadilly for the south of France, for the recovery of his health.

We hear that the Duke of Grafton, the Earl of Hertford, and General Conway, had the honour of a conference for two hours with his Majesty yesterday.

This morning Lord Effingham Howard, who arrived in town from Russia, had a long conference with the Duke of Grafton, at his house in Arlington-street.

So urgent were the livery on Tuesday, for Mr. Beckford to serve the office of Mayor, that many of them got upon the hustings, shook him by the hand, and entreated him with great earnestness to serve the office.

Yesterday the sheriffs accompanied by fourteen other gentlemen of the livery, waited on Mr. Beckford, at his house, Soho-Square, to request him to accept the office of Lord Mayor to which he was elected; which, after expressing his grateful acknowledgments to the livery, he consented to do.

We hear that a rope-maker in Rotherhithe; who used annually to export cordage, to the value of 5000l. sterling, to North-America, has not, for the last two years, sent thither, to the amount of 500l. and there is reason to fear, this branch of trade, among many others, will be irrecoverably lost to Great-Britain.

A letter from Hull, dated the 6th inst. says, "Last Tuesday the Russian fleet appeared off the Holderness coast, and on Wednesday pilots from this place got on board, where they weighed anchor and put to sea; but the wind blowing strong from the east, they were obliged to put back, and are now at anchor at the Hawk, near the mouth of the Humber. The account in the London papers of one of this fleet being lost at the Scaw, is not true; but a bomb vessel is come into our road to repair some damages she has received. The rendezvous is at Spithead, to which place the admiral is ordered to get with all expedition."

We hear the whole Russian fleet have orders to rendezvous in the bay of Gibraltar, previous to their voyage up the Levant.

Extract of a letter from Essex, October 6.

"This day the county meeting came on, when Dr. Musgrave produced a petition, which was read aloud by Major Putt, of the eastern battalion of militia, and was universally approved of. Mr. Serjeant Glynn, recorder of this city, spoke for near an hour, in the most spirited and Roman-like manner, and was seconded by Dr. Musgrave. Lord Lilburn and Mr. Spooner attended, and having opposed the petition, were answered alternately by the Serjeant and Doctor.—After the petition was approved of, (together with some spirited instructions to the Knights of the shire) Lord L. went out at the back door, to avoid the populace, but being discovered, was pursued, hissed, and hooted at, from the Castle to the house he took refuge in. — Spooner, Esq; was served in the same manner. Counsellor Short spoke unpopularity, and was hissed and silenced. John Parker, Esq; our Knight of the shire, behaved exceeding well on this occasion, by stepping forward, and offering his services to present the petition to his Majesty, in which he was seconded by the worthy sheriffs Sir Thomas Ackland, and Sir John Rogers, Bart.—Mr. Serjeant Glynn made a motion, that the thanks of this county be presented to the freeholders of Middlesex, for their steady attachment to the cause of liberty, which was unanimously assented to; and the same is ordered to be advertised under the name of the sheriffs.

We hear that orders have been dispatched to the commanding officer of the troops at Boston, to make a strict enquiry into the trial of the Grenadier who was lately refused from the constables there; and that directions have been given for justice to be executed on all who have violated the rights of the civil magistrates in that town.

OCTOBER 15. We hear that Mr. Alderman Beckford is in the forty-first year of his age.

The noble and learned Lord of the Bedchamber, Townshend and Salisbury on Tuesday last, has rendered their names endearing to all well-wishers of their country; and the sheriffs of London are now become the toast in the city.

On Wednesday Sir Edward Hawke had the honour of a conference with his Majesty at St. James's.

The augmentation of troops on the Irish establishment, which is thought will meet with a warm opposition, is to amount to 3000.

A letter from York, dated Oct. 10, says, "We are informed that so great is the spirit of the freeholders in most parts of this county, for the support of the rights of the electors of Great-Britain in general, that they strive who shall be the foremost to sign the petition to be presented to his Majesty on that subject. By the best accounts that have been received, there are 1000 who have already signed it; amongst whom, we are assured, are several members of parliament."

A meeting of the city of Exon is fixed the 24th instant, to consider of a petition to his Majesty, and instructions to the members.

At a meeting at Bodmin in Cornwall, the 6th instant, a petition was read and agreed to by the majority of the freeholders, and many have signed it.

Yesterday General Paoli set out for Portsmouth, Plymouth, Bath, Bristol, and several other places.

OCTOBER 14. Yesterday Lord Viscount Weymouth had the honour of a conference with his Majesty, after breaking up of the council at St. James's.

We hear that the Earl of Harcourt will go again Ambassador to the court of France, and is to set out some time this month for Paris.

It is confidently asserted, that General Paoli has a pension settled upon him, by the government, of one thousand pounds per ann.

This morning his Excellency the Russian Ambassador had a long conference with both the secretaries of state, on the subject of advices received yesterday from Peterburgh. Immediately after which, his Excellency sent an express to Portsmouth, to the commanders of the Russian men of war there.

Yesterday a packet arrived at the Admiralty-office from Commodore Spry, commander of his Majesty's Squadron in the Mediterranean.

Mr. Beckford's consent to serve the office of Lord Mayor, gives universal satisfaction in the city, as much is expected from the spirit and resolution of that gentleman towards obtaining a redress of the grievances complained of.

It is reported that the second petition of the livery of London will be presented to his Majesty the week after next, by the Lord Mayor, Mr. Alderman Beckford, and the rest of the gentlemen who went up with the last, together with several others who have since become members of the Bill of Rights.

A correspondent says, "The London livery, it seems, want an answer to their petition! such of them that can read, will find one, and 'tis hoped, to their satisfaction, in Ecclesiasticus, chap. xxxviii. ver. 24. to the end."

We hear that a motion will be made on Tuesday se'night in the Court of Aldermen, relative to John Wilkes, Esq; which, it is imagined, will occasion warm debates there, and is of such a nature, as will astonish the public in general when made known.

A political writer, in an address to his Grace the D. of G—n, says, "With whatever regret an affectionate subject might behold the tumult that but a few months ago appeared before the palace of the most amiable and benevolent of Princes, men of discernment well knew that it was the minister, and not the Sovereign, that was the object of clamour and discontent, and that the people daring to complain of an odious, arbitrary minister, is not a crime confined alone to this nation. Had the people in their fury, like those at Madrid, indecently demanded an audience from their Sovereign, and peremptorily have insisted upon the disgrace of the minister, whose odious conduct had forced them to such extravagant proceedings, whatever affectionate concern, under circumstances like those, every dutiful subject would have had but a small share of their regret; and as the first petition of the city of London, which occasioned that outrageous tumult, has by your Grace been treated with silent contempt, happy if the same causes do not again produce the same effects, for a second petition is now preparing to be brought up; a proceeding so unprecedented in a powerful opulent body of men like the city of London, as cannot fail to add to those apprehensions and discontents that unhappily are too universal."

It is now currently reported, that Mrs. Macaulay is the author of those spirited letters, addressed to the Duke of G—n, which the public have been favoured with under the signature of Junius.

A letter from Portsmouth, dated October 12, says, "Two Russian men of war are already arrived, one of 74, and the other of 50 guns.—The remainder of the fleet is daily expected, for we hear they are in Yarmouth road."

A gentleman, just arrived from Nottingham, says, that the petition, now preparing at that place, sets forth in a very striking manner the absolute necessity of dissolving the present parliament.

A company of gentlemen of the city (among whom was Mr. F. a Scotch merchant) lately met at a tavern over a bottle, and the toasts going round, when, in course, it came to Mr. F's turn, he gave Lord Bute, which went about without hesitation: The next gentleman then gave, the Devil upon Lord Bute's back. Mr. F. made several refusals; but upon the toast-master's saying, that as he freely drank Lord Bute, he should comply with his toast, and if Mr. F. refused to drink it, he would turn him out, upon which Mr. F. thought proper to comply.

It is reported that the Rev. Mr. Horne will be appointed Chaplain to the Lord Mayor elect.

"The conduct of Samuel Vaughan, Esq; having been brought into question, and he having informed this society that an information is intended to be moved for against him: Resolved, That if the said Mr. Vaughan does not truly justify himself, either on a trial, or by publication, if no trial be had next term, the society will then proceed on an examination of his public conduct, and determine accordingly, and that this resolution be published. MORRIS, Secretary." BRESCIA, August 24. Since we had the misfortune of having our powder magazine blown up, three days have been spent in digging out of the ruins, about 2000 dead bodies, and 500 people, who though they are still alive, are dangerously bruised. The fifth part of this city is entirely destroyed, and the rest is very much damaged. Orders have been sent from Venice, to leave of searching for the dead bodies, as the corruption of so many, might affect the air, and occasion several distempers. The damages suffered by this deplorable accident are estimated at two millions of ducats.

WARSAW, September 27. A courier dispatched from Kamienek on the 20th instant, has brought the following important advices. On the 17th instant, very early in the morning, a body of 12,000 Turks, 8000 of which were Janissaries, and 4000 horse, passed the Niester, over a bridge which was covered by a battery of cannon. About noon the water in that river rose so high that it broke down the bridge. Prince Gallitzin being informed of this, attacked the enemy with so much success, that only some hundreds of the Turks saved themselves by swimming on shore, the rest being killed or taken prisoners. The Russian troops took upon this occasion 151 pair of colours and horse's tails, and two general's staffs; and soon after they took a battery belonging to the enemy of 64 cannon, and 14 mortars. The loss of the Russians was but 155 killed, and 600 wounded. As soon as the Ottoman army, which was on the other side of the Niester, heard of the total defeat of the body of 12,000 men, the Turks expressed by loud cries their discontent against the Grand Vizir, and indignation against the confederates, they abandoned the fortress of Chocim, and made a precipitate retreat towards Bender. In the mean time the Russian army pushed the river in pursuit of the enemy, and general prince Gallitzin immediately took possession of Chocim, where he found 145 pieces of large cannon, and a quantity of ball, bombs, and other ammunition, together with some hundreds of Turkish women. The number of prisoners which the Russian troops had taken on the other side the Niester at the departure of the courier, amounted to about 6000 men, among whom were several Bashaws. A report likewise prevailed in Kamienek, that count Protocki and some other confederates were cut to pieces by the Turks.

WILLIAMSBURG, (Virginia) NOVEMBER 9.
The SPEECH of his Excellency the Right Honourable NORMAN BARON DE BOTETOURT, his Majesty's Lieutenant and Governor General of the colony and dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice-Admiral of the same, to the General Assembly, convened at the Capitol, on Tuesday the 7th of November, 1769.

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses.

I HAVE again received the King's commands to meet you in General Assembly for the dispatch of the public business of this dominion, and I hope I need not observe to you, that this will be best done by temper and moderation. I assure you that I shall obey my Royal Master's commands with the truest satisfaction, by concurring with you in such measures as may best promote the happiness of his Majesty's subjects in Virginia.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses,

The King having been graciously pleased, at our earnest desire, to refer to his Board of Trade, to reconsider the boundary line between this colony and the Cherokees, which had been agreed to by that Board, I am directed to acquaint you that in consequence of that reference and reconsideration, a report has been made in favour of a more extended boundary, and that his Majesty will consent to the proposed alteration, upon condition that the colony will make provision to defray the expence of the negotiation necessary for that purpose. I have it therefore in command from his Majesty, to ask of this House of Burgesses to enable him to carry into immediate and complete execution that very desirable object. The proposed alteration, together with the rate of the expence which I am told will necessarily attend it, shall be immediately laid before you.

I must likewise beg your attention to many alarming reports which have been received from the frontier counties of this colony. I will lay the whole before you, with a state of every thing which has been done in consequence of those accounts, and shall be supremely happy if you can suggest to me any mode of proceeding, by which the sacred laws of our country may again recover that free course, which can alone give permanence and security to this respectable government.

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses,

I think myself peculiarly fortunate to be able to inform you that, in a letter dated May the 13th, I have been assured by the Earl of Hillsborough that his Majesty's present Administration have at no time entertained a design to propose to Parliament to lay any farther taxes upon America for the purpose of raising a revenue, and that it is their intention to propose in the next session of Parliament to take off the duties upon glass, paper, and colours, upon consideration of such duties having been laid contrary to the true principles of commerce. It may possibly be objected that as his Majesty's present Administration are not immortal, their successors may be inclined to attempt to undo what the present Ministers shall have attempted to perform: To that objection I can give but this answer, that it is my firm opinion that the plan I have stated to you will certainly take place, and that it will never be departed from; and so determined am I for ever to abide by it that I will be content to be declared infamous if I do not, to the last hour of my life, at all times, in all places, and upon all occasions, exert every power with which I either am or ever shall be invested, in order to obtain and maintain for the continent of America, that satisfaction which I have been authorized to promise this day by the confidential servants of our gracious sovereign, who, to my certain knowledge, rates his honour so high, that he would rather part with his crown than preserve it by deceit.
